DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES

and Measures. A strict construction of the Constitution, and no assumption of doubtful powers.

A Diplomacy, asking for nothing but what is clearly right and submitting to nothing wrong:

No connexion between the government and banks. An ad ralorem revenue Tariff. No public debt, either by the General Government or by the States, except for objects of urgent neces-

No assumption by the General Government of the debts of the States, either directly or indirectly, by a distribution of the proceeds of the public lands.

No extensive system of Internal Improvement by the General Government, or by the States. A constitutional barrier against improvident State

The honest payment of our debts and the sacred preservation of the public faith. A gradual return from a paper credit system.

No grants of exclusive charters and privileges, by special legislation, to banks. No swindling corporations.

No connexion between Church and State. A preference for democrats over whigs for every Acquiescence in the rule of the majority in all cases of party discipline.

No prescription for honest opinions. Fostering aid to public education, A "progressive" reformation of all abuses.

FOREIGN PERIODICALS. REPUBLICATION OF

The London Quarterly Review, The I dinbuigh Review. The Foreign Quarterly Review, The Westminister Review, and

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine. ME above Periodicals are reprinted in New York, immediately on their arrival by the British steamers, in a beautiful clear type. on fine white paper, and are faithful copies of the originals-Blackwood's Manazine being an exact fac simile of the Edinburgh edition. The wide-spread fame of these splendid Periodicals renders it needless to say much in their praise. As literary organs, they stand far in advance of any works of a similar stamp now published, while the tage under Law of 1845, political complexion of each is marked by a dignity, candor, and forbearance not often found in works of a party character. They embrace the views of the three great parties in England-2 cents. minster," Radical. The "Foreign Quarterly" is purely literary, nce or part thereof, single postage, Seculs. being devoted principally to criticisms on foreign Continental Works.
